

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This disclosure described a method for purchases through a network. A consumer can directly purchase products at the manufacturer's web site through a browser and the Internet. The database of the web site will relate the product to relevant free gifts so that the 5 consumer can directly select the free gift he wants through the network. In such a way, the consumer can actually obtain the gift he wants and the manufacturer can lower the cost of the gifts (especially true for installation software).